All Ready for Glendale's First Community Picnic Tomorrow!

LINEBERGER TO BE CHIEF SPEAKER AT PICNIC

Credit Men Will Spend $250 for Fireworks; Other Action Is Taken

The Community picnic tomorrow at the Verdugo canyon park yesterday noon was the principal topic of discussion at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Merchants' Credit Association.

Many Glendale stores, with the exception of drug stores, will be closed all day—or part of the day if they follow the recommendation of a motion of this organization.

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said he thought the public should be informed if several stores did not show more interest in the welfare of the community.

Congressman Walter F. Lineberger of Long Beach is to be present on the occasion, according to an announcement made by Judge Owen C. Emery, who presided. He appointed H. M. Butts of 121 South Brand boulevard, C. A. Stuarrt of 638 East Broadway and George B. Karr of 1725 South Brand boulevard on the reception committee. He said that he did not think it necessary to appoint politicians because he knew they would be on the job anyway.

$250 For Fireworks.

Judge Emery remarked that he knew the picnic would be a huge success if the members of the Credit Association show the same spirit out there putting it over that they displayed at the recent outing in Verdugo Canyon.

Fireworks for the evening were highly recommended by William Hunter of 119 South Brand boulevard, who said that they would attract every youngster to the scene from miles around. After some discussion the expenditure of about $250 for them was indorsed after City Manager W. H. Reeves had given his opinion that the city might donate about $100 for them. It was understood that a committee was to be appointed to solicit contributions for this expense from the merchants. Mr. Rhoades requested the privilege of donating $5.

E. D. Yard of 646 North Jackson street presented a petition recommending that the railroad commission take action in regard to insisting that the Southern Pacific Railway Company establish suitable depot facilities on its old property at the end of Milford street.

Espee Agrees to Depot.

The Southern Pacific has agreed to a new station already and officials of this company were to have come to Glendale last night for a conference when prevented by the strike according to the announcement made by Mr. Rhoades. He recommended that the matter be laid on the table for a few days. This was done.

R. B. Graves of Norton, Kansas, was introduced as a guest at the luncheon. Besides those already mentioned, the following attended the luncheon: George H. Thomas, Dr. David A. Baker, Smith MacMullin, S. F. Bell, J. C. Little David Crofton, Archie Parker, C. C. Sherrod, Issac Grossman, Robert T. Phillip, C. H. Kirkman, G. A. Laverson, O. W. Andresen, Dar Kelty Jr., Ed. N. Radke, A. T. Cowan, W. C. Page, R. W. Jessup, J. P. Luccock, John L. Watson, Lyman P. Clark, William Moore, C. J. Hatz, Don Packer, H. A Kent, H. W. McGuire, W. Q. Widdows, Harry Moore, R. C. Flume H. M. Butts, Joseph H. Folz, J. H. Wittmeyer, J. A. Robinson and Arthur H. Dibbern.

Keep In Touch With Home Folks Through Evening News Mail

"When vacationing have the Evening News follow you" is becoming quite a popular slogan and habit with Glendalians when they're off for a beach or mountain outing.

Requests to have the News mailed to various vacation points come in daily to the News office, as well as reports from Glendalians who have enjoyed the News while away for vacations.

The most recent report comes from Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gasser and family of 315 North Louise street, who have just returned from two months spent in Calaveras county, where they received the Glendale News by mail.

"We had a fine vacation," says Mr. Gasser, "and one of the real pleasures was receiving the Evening News, which kept us in touch with what the folks were doing at home."

FOUR SCOUTS GO TO SACRAMENTO

Executive Board Looks for Some Motorist Who Wants Happy Trip

At a meeting of the executive board of the Verdugo Hills district, B. S. A., held yesterday evening at the office of Roy L. Kent, 130 South Brand boulevard, it was unanimously decided to send four of the older Scouts of the district to the Older Scouts' conference to be held in Sacramento September 1 to 3.

A competition for the merit badge Scouts of the district is to be staged by the council, and the four who make the highest number of points will be sent to the conference. The tests in the competition will include various activities.

It is the hope of the board to find some person who will take the four Scouts to Sacramento in his automobile. Outside of transportation, all expenses will be borne by the regional committee which is in charge of arrangements for the conference.

Talks On Older Scouts

Charles N. Miller, of Los Angeles, regional Scout executive, addressed the meeting last night on the Older Scouts' conference and the Second Biennial conference of Scout executives which is to be held at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, from September 8 to 20.

Following Mr. Miller's talk it was decided to send the four Scouts to the Sacramento conference, and to send H. F. Benner, Scout executive of the Verdugo Hills district, to the conference at Blue Ridge.

Peter L. Ferry, chairman of the camping committee, gave the final report on the camp. Finances were discussed, and financial plans for next year were perfected.

'TRUCE' WITH 'BIG FOUR' RESTORING RAIL TRAFFIC

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—Determined action to break up the railroad strike which for days practically isolated southern California and is causing a daily loss estimated at $1,000,000 to fruit growers, was reported under way today coincident with the disarmament of guards and resumption of traffic on one of the transcontinental lines crippled by the walkouts. Following the lead of Union Pacific officials, who agreed to a "truce" with "big four" employes and succeeded in restoring the free movement of traffic, other companies were reported to be working rapidly towards the resumption of normal train schedules. The Western Pacific, however, remained tied up.

THEFT OF LETTER IN KLAN CASE NEW SENSATION

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—A bombshell broke in the Ku Klux Klan case today when it was discovered that a highly important document had been stolen from the files of the district attorney's office by a mysterious woman who turned it over to the defense lawyers in the trial of the thirty-six Klansmen who participated in the Inglewood masked mob raid. The document was a report made by Major William B. Heinecke, a deputy district attorney, April 24, two days after the Inglewood raid, to Chief Deputy District Attorney Doran. In it Heinecke related a conversation he had with Constable M. B. Mosher, slain during the raid, eight days before the mob violence. The document's theft was revealed when Defense Attorneys D'Orr and Abrahams gave it to Judge Houser with the statement that it had been left at their office by an unidentified woman. Chief Deputy District Attorney Doran charged that the letter was stolen from the district attorney's office, which has been under guard night and day since the Inglewood raid.

WIDOW HELD FOLLOWING MURDER OF RICH MAN

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 15.—Mrs. William R. Guiberson, 38 years old and beautiful, a leading member of the Lakewood Methodist church, and a staunch supporter of religious reforms, is in jail at Toms River today charged with the murder of her husband, while the police declare that a sensation will follow, not devoid of romantic embellishments. Prosecutor W. H. Jayne, Jr., who ordered the woman's arrest, said he expected at least one more arrest within twenty-four hours. Love letters found in Mrs. Guilberson's dressing table furnish the clue upon which the police are now at work. Mrs. Guilberson took her arrest calmly. She claimed her husband had been killed by burglars. She said she was aroused from her sleep, and as she went to the kitchen to investigate, she was seized by two men who bound and gagged her with a handkerchief put in her mouth. One of the men, she said, entered her husband's bedroom and a moment later she heard a shot. The man in the kitchen exclaimed: "Why did you do that?" she said. The other man was alleged to have replied: "Because he was just waking up."

Let's Stick to Good Old Name Verdugo, Urged

That the new city park, to be dedicated tomorrow, is creating much interest in the community of Glendale is indicated by the number of communications, written and verbal, directed to The Evening News concerning the past, present and future of the municipal pleasure place. Peter Hanson, who urges the retention of the good old name Verdugo, also has a slogan and a "class yell" for the park. His letter reads:

"To the Editor, The Evening News: I have noted with interest the names suggested for the new municipal park, and I submit herewith simply the name "Verdugo Park." This not only perpetuates the old family name, but is also best suited to designate the park's location. Who would not know what park is meant when the name "Verdugo" is mentioned?

"Along with the adoption of the name, I offer the following as a good yell to dedicate it with:

"'Verdugo! Verdugo! Verdugo-go! Go-verdu! Go-verdu! Go-verdugo!'

"Respectfully submitted,
"PETER HANSON."

FIREWORKS, BALL GAMES, SPORTS, SPEECHES, DANCING AND OTHER EVENTS TO KEEP CROWD HAPPY

Merchants' Association Has Stupendous Array of Prizes Lined Up; All Present Can Compete; Noisy Pyrotechnics Promised

Boom! Bang! Boom! And some more booms!

The entire valley will be reminded of the big Community Picnic at Glendale's new park in Verdugo Woodlands district tomorrow when a series of terrific explosions rattle the window panes and tickle the ear drums. The committee on arrangements has planned to have a series of aerial bombs detonated in the park and at Glendale, alternately, to remind the inhabitants that pleasure and civic duty call upon them to participate in the picnic.

Thousands are planning on bringing their own lunch baskets well filled. Cold drinks and ice cream and light lunches will be available through arrangements made by the concessions committee of the Glendale Merchants' Association, under whose auspices the great "tea party" is to be held.

Congressman Walter F. Lineberger will be the speaker of the day. Ball games and athletic events also are on the program.

To make the formal opening of the park and the Merchants' association outing an event which will long linger in the minds of all as a worthy accomplishment, a joint committee has arranged with the Empire Fireworks Display company for an excellent pyrotechnical display for tomorrow night, starting about 8 o'clock.

Eliminates Danger

Yesterday afternoon a representative of the fireworks concern went over the grounds with a view of securing the best effects possible, and at the same time to make certain that every possible element of danger would be removed. This field man expressed himself as being delighted with the topography and surroundings, and assured the committee that the very finest results were attainable.

The major portion of the display will be of the aerial type, although several set-pieces will be included, but the range will extend from the variety certain to bring joy to the hearts of children and amazement to their elders.

You'll Hear 'Em

Japanese, Chinese and Italian shells and bombs, augmented by American rockets, in which line of fireworks this country excels, will be used, while the detonators will be heard for a considerable number of miles.

During the world-war much mention was made of the magnesium illuminating rockets used by the Germans in "No Man's Land," but tomorrow night the people of Glendale and her thousands of visitors will actually see the effects of this ingenious accomplishment.

It is promised that all that is beautiful in the pyrotechnic art will be provided, and which goes to show to what expense those sponsoring the "big doings" are going to in striving to make it the finest up to the present.

$100 LIQUOR FINE TO OLD SPANIARD

Cruz Ybarra's Sentence Is Suspended by Judge Owen C. Emery

Cruz Ybarra, one of the old Spanish residents of Tujunga canyon, was fined $100 this morning for having in his possession liquor for other than home use, and for selling liquor. Judge Owen C. Emery, who imposed the fine, suspended sentence because of mitigating circumstances.

Ybarra, who is said to be related to the Verdugos, former owners of vast land holdings in this district, was charged in the complaint with having quantities of wine at his residence in Tujunga canyon, and with unlawfully selling it. He plead guilty to the charge.

Judge Emery explains that in his belief, Ybarra was not an intentional lawbreaker. It was customary with him to have wine for family use, it is stated, and it was out of hospitality that he sold a small quantity to some persons who asked for it.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Contreras after an investigation had been made by the district attorney's office, and a complaint filed against the offender. Circumstances under which the law was violated caused Judge Emery to decide to suspend the sentence, with the provision that a similar offense will bring a double fine.

Ice Cream Supper at A. T. Davis Home

For the supper two large bowls of ice cream were placed at either end of the table and the cream was served with countless other delicacies made by the hostesses.

Those seated about the table were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Briggs and Miss Mildred Briggs of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Knight, Mrs. Allie Black and children of Silver City, New Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Knight of Chicago Ill.; Miss Doris Davis and members of the A. T. Davis family.

DISABLED BUDDIES KNOW JOHNSON IS FOR THEM!

William J. Eckles of Glendale Gives Lie to Slander Against Senator

High praise to Hiram Johnson for his active assistance to World-War veterans in their time of need has been tendered by William J. Eckles of 1221 West Winchester street, Glendale, in a signed letter addressed "To the Voters" and handed to the local Johnson-for-Senator club, as follows:

"To the Voters: Having read all kinds of attacks on Senator Johnson—one of them stating that he was against the ex-service men—I feel it my duty to make the following statement:

"Being a disabled soldier, I was called up for examination in November, 1920. Following an examination by four doctors, two of whom are specialists, I was recommended for 'total disability.'

Johnson Got Results

"The following January I received a letter from the Veterans' bureau at Washington declaring that I was not to be granted the recommendation. This didn't seem right, for I could not understand why a doctor at Washington who had never seen me should overrule eminent physicians who had given the case personal examination.

"I wrote to Senator Johnson, explaining my case, and less than three weeks later I was examined by the same doctors and the previous recommendation was confirmed. In another two weeks I received a telegram that compensation had been granted me, and in another week my check was delivered to me.

Knows of Other Cases

"I know of others who have received prompt aid from Senator Johnson, and I believe they should now make the facts of their cases known. I have never met an ex-service man who applied to Johnson for aid and failed to get it.

"This statement is entirely voluntary and is made to inform the voters of personal experience that contradicts some campaign allegations that have been made by Johnson's opponents. Senator Johnson did not know me, and to the best of my knowledge had never heard of me prior to receiving my letter asking his aid, which was promptly and efficiently given.

This Is News If Not Considered All Too Lightly

The Eagle Rock Daily News is regarded as the "light that never failed"—to speak in a light vein, or in a vain light—if one is to judge from the number of Eagle Rockers or Eagle Rockites—or Eagle Rockets, or whatever they're called—that rush into the News office and try to leave cash, checks, and excuses for electric light bills.

Now, the office of the News is heavily and specifically labeled as such, yet the lighting debtors get into the wrong stall to feed the current kitty, very frequently. The News has qualms against taking money for which the Edison company has furnished watts, volts, amperes, and what-not, and would respectfully ask if anybody has been leaving want ads at the electric company's office, one entrance east of the News. What say?

R. B. Graves, who arrived in Southern California recently from Norton, Kansas, with his wife, spent yesterday looking over Southern Glendale with George B. Karr of the Baldwin Shirt company. Mr. Karr has been accused of trying to get all the people in Kansas located in Glendale. His only alibi in this case is the fact that Mr. Graves does not come from Parsons.

NAPOLEON L'BLANC WRITES FROM OLD HOME

Returns to St. Pie, Canada, and Finds Few Who Knew Him of Yore

An account of the inteersting experience of having visited his native town, St. Pie, Canada, after sixty years absence, is given in a letter received at the Evening News office from Napoleon LeBlanc of 204 East Maple street.

Mr. LeBlanc left Glendale June 27 and in his letter he tells of incidents en route to his destination. In Montreal he attended mass in the St. James cathedral, which he says is a perfect reproduction of St. Peter's in Rome.

Of his visit in Montreal he says, "Not having heard from one brother and two sisters that were in Montreal, for a number of years, I inserted an advertisement personal in La Presse of Montreal and the following day I received an answer from my single sister. She informed me of the death of my brother a year ago, and gave the address of my married sister and I met my brother-in-law for the first time."

Only Five He Knows.

From Montreal Mr. LeBlanc went to Kingsbury for a visit with his brother, who owns a 218 acre farm, and then went on to St. Pie. Of his native town Mr. Blanc writes, "Well, I found five people that were there when I left sixty years ago. One is an aunt of 92 years, as well and bright as a woman of 50; the others are three men, who were little children when I left and today they look old enough to be my grandfather, and the fifth the daughter of a former neighbor."

As for the climate Mr. LeBlanc says, "Seventy-five miles northeast of Montreal on the tenth and twenty-third of July I saw white frost on the roof at 4 o'clock in the morning. When I had to ride eight or ten miles to take a train I was as cold as in our ordinary winter weather, and there were many rainy days as cold as our winter rains, cloudy days and fogs, hence I am experiencing the weather of a California winter in summer time. But I must not close without mentioning that I have seen a few summer days in Montreal, 92 degrees and hot nights which were as oppressive as one-hundred in Glendale."

In closing Mr. LeBlanc mentions receiving weekly bundles of the Evening News, in which he says he first read of the unfortunate accident Harry Girard suffered.

Fred Heal Is Back at Office Again

F. W. Heal, real estate man, is now back in his office at 1600 South San Fernando road after a week's absence. Bridgeman, Miss Bridgeman and Miss Clara Bridgeman. Mr. Bridgeman is organist of the Methodist church of Vancouver.

The new plumbing shop at 1418 South San Fernando road is operated by Thomas Kendrick and Fred A. Anderson of Los Angeles. They report plenty of work to keep them busy. They are now installing the pipes in ten flats.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Ready for the Picnic?
Admiration for Others
About Probation Law
Iowa Has Its Lightning

By Gil A. Cowan

READY for the picnic, folks? No need for asking that question, because everybody in Glendale is going to get out to the new park some time tomorrow and mix with the merchants and others attending.

However, there will be no mixing of fists, no mixing of drinks and so forth and so on. It is going to be one of those happy, peaceful affairs that will make you well satisfied having taken the time for.

There are several precautions that are well worth mentioning. Wear high shoes, folks, and, if you have knickerbockers and puttees—put 'em on so you can enjoy the scenic spots of the new Verdugo park. And if you are subject to poison ivy, be careful; and don't sit on any of the bees which play around those parts of the woods; and otherwise use your good common sense to keep out of trouble.

Remember, now. No accidents to mar the festive day

Sometimes we read what others have written and we want to go way back and sit down—for they sure do sling a wicked pen, or rattle a rusty typewriter effectively.

So it is that I like to pass on some choice bits that I read, giving credit for them and hoping that the readers of this column will enjoy the other's viewpoint.

The San Francisco Journal says editorially:

"When the administration of the criminal law came entirely under local political control it resulted in giving the criminal who had a political following practical immunity from punishment. As a consequence of this favoritism those who had no voting power nor pull felt the crushing weight of the law. Boys who had yielded to their first temptation, men who in desperation of poverty had committed petty crimes were visited with a punishment out of all proportion to the wrong. It was found that imprisonment not only effected no regeneration, but the stain of it made regeneration impossible, rendering the prisoner a sullen outcast with his more mature powers arrayed against society.

"To those not criminal by nature the probation law holds out an opportunity; it places them under the constraint and control of the law, but avoids its crushing power. Where the minor crimes are concerned by a proper probation at least 75 per cent may be redeemed to society. The remaining 25 per cent continue by choice in the criminal class and their crimes increase in ferocity.

"Probation should never be granted to affirmative crimes, such as felonies against the body, burglary, conspiracy, felonious assaults and like crimes because they indicate a declared purpose of a criminal mind.

"But politics again interfered and that probation law, which had as its purpose only the selection of the criminal mind from those who had gone wrong thru poverty or the weakness of untested character, was again used as a weapon by politicians to permit the punishment of declared criminals and immediately guarantee them probation.

"The probation law, with its power to investigate antecedents and to control the prisoner so that he will at all times be amendable to the law, is too valuable to society to take it from the statute books. In California, wherever the judge has a discretion as to the punishment; that is, where it is left to the judge to decide as to the length of imprisonment or the amount of fine, probation may be applied for. But where the jury fixes the punishment probation may not be had, and as the jury has the right to fix the punishment only in case of first degree murder, it gives probation for every crime except murder.

"This is too wide a discretion because there should be a list of crimes for which no probation could be sought and those should include not only murder but robbery of any kind," conspiracy, rape, seduction, driving an automobile when intoxicated and any offense that has for its object direct injury to the person or shows an abandoned and malignant heart.

"The law has been amended a number of times, and as experience reveals the defects and imperfections, it can be remedied by legislative enactment. Prompt and direct punishment of crime is essential to society, but the extent of the punishment should be made to depend entirely upon the nature of the crime, and this punishment fixed by law and thus remove the probation law from the tampering of expediency politicians in its enforcement."

Employes of the state of California with automobiles full of political advertising advocating the election of Stephens for governor, run at the expense of the taxpayers, are going about the state highways and men who receive their pay from the state treasury are tacking up this stuff. Every one of these signs can well be looked upon as a public advertisement of the political machine in the present state government. There is one consolation, however, and that is that it will not compare with the constructive publicity given free of charge by the country newspapers which propose to see that sort of thing shall end in California.

You hear little of lightning in California, but back in Iowa the Sioux City Tribune discusses the use of lightning rods as follows:

"The attention of humorists is called to the advice of Charles P. Steinmetz in an interview in the American Magazine that the long discredited lightning rod is the best safeguard against lightning. The distinguished electrical engineer gives it as his opinion that the rods are not being used enough in this country. This will surprise many who have been deriving their knowledge about the lightning rod from humorous publications, and from whom the mere sight of a rod was sufficient to get a laugh.

"Dr. Steinmetz also furnishes some interesting information regarding lightning. It may strike anywhere, he says, because it always takes the shortest route from the sky to the earth. A person's chances of being struck are one in 240,000. A single tree is a more dangerous spot in a storm than a group of trees. A house on a hill is more apt to be struck than a house in a hollow. Steel framed buildings are almost immune.

Great ships require great waters.

NEW RAIL STRIKE PEACE EFFORT AS CALIFORNIA FRUITS DECAY

Congress Reassembling As Cabinet Considers What to Do

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Another thrust towards peace in the critical railroad strike was being made today, while congress reassembled in Washington and President Harding met with his cabinet for a thorough discussion as to how the federal government can best meet the most critical situation the country has faced in years.

The peace move was being engineered by the leaders of the four railway brotherhoods, with the sanction of the president. It aimed at "sounding out" the railroad presidents who were sympathetic toward President Harding's original proposal of unimpaired seniority rights of striking shopmen to ascertain if there has been any change in the general sentiment since the executives so summarily rejected the proposal in New York two weeks ago.

Hope for peace is admittedly a forlorn one. The brotherhood chiefs do not believe a sufficient number of executives are willing to yield on the seniority issue to make peace possible, but they agreed to poll the country anyway.

Coal Seizure Charged

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The action of certain railroads in confiscating coal which is being moved under priority orders of equal or higher class than coal for railroad fuel, was denounced today by the interstate commerce commission.

"This practice is not consistent with the spirit of the service orders of the commission and tends to defeat the efforts now being made to insure the most efficient distribution of coal," the commission said.

All railroads were ordered to refrain from confiscating coal in construction of the service orders.

Harding's Hope Low

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—"So far as President Harding is concerned, all government negotiations for ending the railroad strike are off," it was declared here today by Senator James E. Watson, Republican, Indiana, after he had spent nearly an hour in conference with the president at the White House.

Few Cars Released at Roseville; Growers Meeting Today

—By ELLIS H. MARTIN —
For International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The embargo on fruit and other perishable freight was reported to east today over the Ogden route of the Southern Pacific today following announcement that an agreement had been reached with striking "big four" workers at Roseville. The agreement followed an all night conference and today trains were reported moving through Roseville as usual. The return to work of the men there, released a large number of cars of fruit that had been tied up.

This was the only hopeful development in the Pacific coast rail situation as California fruit growers met here today to devise ways and means of meeting the ruinous situation brought about by the railroad strike.

To Pool Interests.

The meeting was called by State Director of Agriculture G. H. Hecke who hopes to find a way of pooling interests so as to salvage as much as possible of the record crop, lack of transportation facilities for which, it is estimated, is costing the growers a million dollars a day.

Some of the suggestions to be taken up at the meeting were the possibility of shipping eastward through the Panama Canal on specially iced ships; means of increasing the canning pack; storage within the state until the situation improves and the salvage of part of the crop by drying.

Outlet Via Espee

AOtuinlo

The one outlet open to perishable freight was the Southern Pacific via Los Angeles and El Paso, Texas. Other northern, southern and central routes were blocked to perishable fruit although the Southern Pacific was hopeful of opening its Ogden route and northern route through the reported improvement of conditions at Roseville. The Ogden route normally carries three-fourths of the fruit crop east.

The passenger situation was improved. The Western and Union Pacific were the only lines reported tied up completely as to trans-continental traffic. The Southern Pacific was practically normal and the Santa Fe was moving trains with difficulty.

Monte Vista Now Must Get Water

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store. —Advertisement.

COLLEEN MOOR'S A 'WALL FLOWER'

Rupert Hughes Production at Glendale Theatre for Last Times Today

Those who enjoy a sparkling comedy, brilliant titles, and a little weep or two, will find all these in the new Goldwyn picture, "The Wall Flower," by Rupert Hughes, which will be presented at the Glendale Theatre again tonight. Mr. Hughes is one of the few photoplaywrights who know how to create a picture that tells a story convincingly. He is also one of the first to supervise every phase of his work from the writing of the scenario to the cutting of the finished film.

Mr. Hughes made a happy choice when he selected pretty Colleen Moore to play the leading part in "The Wall Flower." This charming player reveals a naivete and an unspoiled sweetness on the screen that is not only captivating, but is absolutely essential to the part she portrays.

Al St. John will be seen in "Special Delivery," a fast comedy.

"The Drifters," which was previewed last night, gave the audience a new idea about the quality to be found in westerners.

Card Party Benefit for Clubhouse Fund

The card party given yesterday afternoon at the Broadway Inn for the benefit of the building fund of the Tuesday Afternoon Club was most successful, there being sixteen tables of bridge and "500." Prizes for high score at "500" were awarded to Miss Lorraine Mitchell and Mrs. William Hunter and at bridge to Mrs. W. L. Andrews, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. C. C. Carroll. The use of the Broadway Inn was donated for the occasion. The Glendale Ice Cream company donated the ice cream and the hostesses furnished home made cake.

Montrose Chamber of Commerce Organized

There is to be a chamber of commerce organized at Montrose, and at a pre-organization meeting to be held tonight, Secretary James M. Rhoades of the Glendale chamber will be the chief speaker.

INGLEWOOD C. OF C. LAUDS GLENDALE FOR PROGRESS

Beach-Road City's People Are Urged to Follow Good Example Set

"Taking Broadway at Eighth street as the center of Los Angeles, a circle passing through the heart of Inglewood would also pass through the heart of Glendale," declares a bulletin recently issued by the Inglewood Chamber of Commerce, in urging upon its members the need for unity and co-operation.

The message goes on to say:

"Which of these towns, in your opinion, has the greatest natural advantages? Which is nearest the harbor, the beaches, the industries? Which has lowest car fare and the best year-round climate?

Glendale Leads, Why?

"Examine all the facts, and you will have to grant that Inglewood has more reasons than Glendale to become the fastest growing city in America.

"But Glendale's claim to that title cannot be disputed.

"She has the figures to show also, the houses and the people.

"However, here is some information that is not generally known. Sixteen months ago, Glendale was a hotbed of factionalism; business was exceedingly dull; property values were dropping; there was no leadership and no plans for the future.

Unity is Secret.

"The above are facts. But something happened about that time. The people got together through a standard Chamber of Commerce, as we are doing here. They reconciled their differences, enrolled 600 members, and began to work out a real program FOR GLENDALE.

Today, their Chamber has over 1,000 members, and the population has doubled."

Mrs. Horner Hostess to P. T. A. Executives

A special meeting of the executive board of the Intermediate School Parent-Teachers' Association was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. C. Horner, 432 West Broadway. Plans for the year were discussed and also the matter of appointing chairmen of committees and departments was considered. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served. Those present included Mrs. A. H. Brown, Mrs. H. Jepson, Mrs. L. Aicholz, Miss Caro Duncan and Mrs. R. C. Horner.

HALL BOYS AT BEACH

CHAPTER VII.

The Watcher in the Shadow

But if Merriton slept, the others of the little party did not. After his door had closed upon him they appeared from their rooms, and met by arrangement once more in the study. Doctor Bartholomew—a little late at having waited and listened for the outward result of his drug in Nigel's comforting snore — joined the group with an anxious face. There was was no laughter now in the pleasant, heated smoking room. Every face there wore a look that bordered closely upon fear.

"Well, Doctor," said Tony West, as he entered the room, what's the plan? I don't like Wynne's absence, I swear I don't. It—it looks fishy, somehow. And he was in no mood to play boyish pranks on us by turnin' in at the Brelliers' place. There's somethin' else afoot. What's your idea, now?"

The doctor considered a moment.

"Better be getting out and form a searching party," he said quietly. "If nothing turns up—well, Nigel needn't know we've been out. But—there's more in this than meets the eye, boys. Frankly, I don't like it. Wynne's a brute, but he never liked practical joking. It's my private opinion that he would have returned by now—if something hadn't happened to him. We'll wait till dawn, and then we'll go. Nigel is good for some hours yet. Wynne always had a bad effect on him. Ever notice it, West? Or you, Stark?"

The two men nodded.

"Yes," said Tony, "I have. Many times. Nigel's never the same fellow when that man's about. He's—he's got some sort of devilish influence over him, I believe. And how he hates Nigel! See his eyes tonight? He could have killed him, I believe—specially as Nigel's taken his girl."

"Yes." The doctor's voice was rather grave. "Wynne's a queer chap and a revengeful one. And he was as drunk as a beast tonight. . . . Well, boys, we'll sit down and wait awhile."

Pipes were got out and cigarets lighted. For an hour in the hot smoking room the men sat, talking in undertones and smoking, or dropping off into long silences. Finally the doctor drew out his watch. He sighed as he looked at it.

"Three o'clock, and no sign of Wynne yet. We'll be getting our things on, boys."

Instantly every man rose to his feet. The tension slackened with movement. In comparative silence they stole out into the hall, threw on their coats, and hats and then Tony West nervously slid the bolts of the big front door. It creaked once or twice, but no sound from the still house answered it. West swung it open, and on the whitened step they quietly put on their shoes.

The doctor switched on an electric torch and threw a blob of light upon the gravelled pathway for them to see the descent. Then one by one they went quietly down the steps, and West shut the door behind them.

"Excellent! Excellent!" exclaimed Doctor Bartholomew, as the gate was reached with no untoward happenings. "Not a soul knows we're gone, boys. That's pretty certain. Now, then, out of the gate and turn up that lane. It'll take us to the very edge of the Fens, I believe, and then our search will commence."

He spoke with assurance, and they followed him instinctively. Unconsciously they had made him captain of the expedition. But—no one had heard them, he had said? If he had looked back once when the big gate shut, he might have changed his mind upon that score. With white face pressed close against the glass of the smoking room window, which looked directly out upon the front path, stood Borkins, watching them as though he were watching a line of ghosts on their nightly prowl.

"Good Gawd!" he ejaculated, as he discerned their dark figures and the light of the doctor's torch. "Every one of 'em gone—every one!" And them, trembling, he went back to bed.

But the doctor did not look back, and so the little party proceeded upon its way in comparative silence until the edge of the Fens was reached. Here, with one accord, they stopped for further instructions. Three torches made the spot upon which they stood like daylight. The doctor bent his eyes downward.

"Now, boys," he said briskly. "Keep your eyes sharp for footprints. Wynne must have struck off here into the Fens, it's the most direct course. He wouldn't have been such a duffer as to walk too far out of his way—if he was bent upon going there at all. . . . Hello! Here's the squelchy mark of a man 's boot, and here's another!"

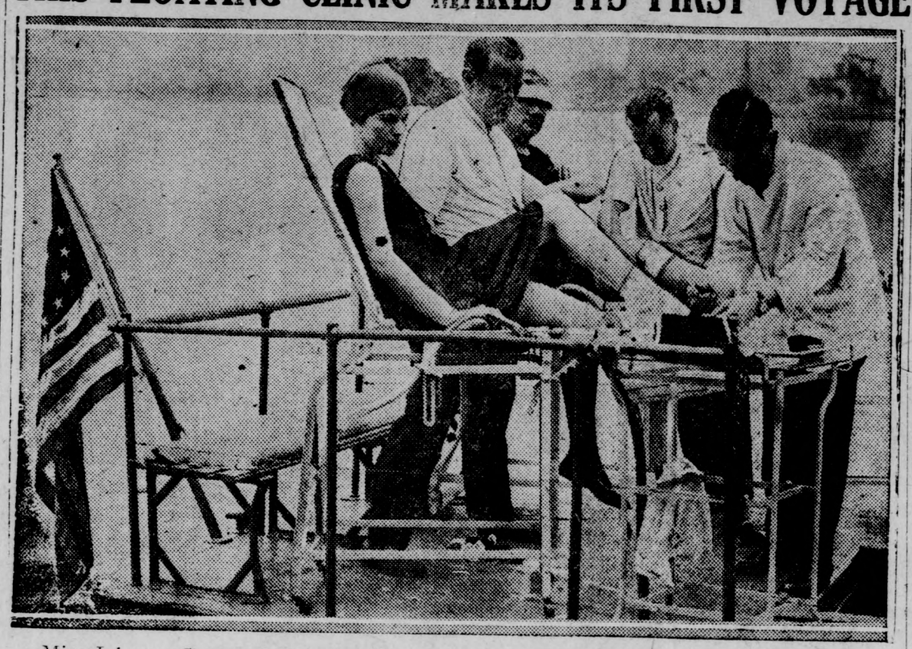
THIS FLOATING CLINIC MAKES ITS FIRST VOYAGE



Miss Johanna Stevens having her foot treated by the physicians aboard the Pediatrist, the first floating clinic in the world, which made its initial trip down the East River, New York City, and stopped at various piers on the way to look after those dock workers, boatmen and bathers who suffered from foot troubles. Miss Stevens injured her foot while bathing, and was fortunate in having the floating clinic at hand to render needed first aid.

RADIO EXPLAINED

By E. H. Lewis

Instructor New York Y. M. C. A. Radio School

VACUUM TUBES IN TRANSMISSION

In order to understand the action of the vacuum tube used today in both transmission and reception of radio signals it will be necessary to briefly review its origin. This leads to a discussion of the "two electrode tube," also known as the "Fleming Valve."

The question will arise, perhaps, as to how a single electrode can be heated when it is inside of a glass bulb. That is simply done by shaping it into a loop and both ends brought through the base of the bulb in exactly the same manner that the filament of an incandescent lamp is used. These ends are connected to a battery of a few cells, generally giving a voltage of about six volts. The current from this battery heats the loop in a similar manner as the filament of the above-mentioned electric lamp. Thus the hot filament becomes one of the electrodes. For the other electrode a little plate of metal is used. A bulb containing a hot and a cold electrode as thus described forms a "two electrode" vacuum tube and was originally designed by Prof. J. A. Fleming, an eminent English scientist.

The action of these tubes depends upon the fact that when a metal is heated in a vacuum it gives off electrons into surrounding space. A study of these electrons is important. The reason for this is that all matter contains them. Matter of all kinds is made up of atoms which are extremely small portions of matter (a drop of water containing billions of them). These atoms in turn contain electrons, which consist of negative electricity. The electrons are all alike and are much smaller than atoms. Besides containing electrons each atom also contains a certain amount of positive electricity. Normally the positive and negative electricity are about equal. However, some of the electrons are not held so firmly to the atom but what they can escape if the atom is violently knocked or jarred. Therefore, when an electron, negatively charged, leaves an atom there is then less negative electricity than positive in the atom; in this condition the atom is said to be positively charged.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE DROOPING ROSE

Once upon a time, when Uncle Wiggily was out walking with Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, the bunny gentleman stopped for a moment and leaned over.

"What in the world are you doing?" asked Nurse Jane. "Did you get a splinter in your foot?" Very often Uncle Wiggily did not bother to put on shoes or boots, but went barefooted.

"No, I'm glad to say it isn't a splinter or a piece of glass," answered Uncle Wiggily. "But here is a poor little ant lady, caught in a drop of sticky gum from the pine tree. I'm going to get her loose."

"Oh, thank you, so much, Uncle Wiggily," spoke the little ant lady in a very tiny voice. "I didn't see this sticky pine gum on the ground and I walked right into it! Ever since then I've been trying to pull my legs loose, but I can't."

"I'll help you" said the bunny and he did, soon setting free the little insect who went happily on her way.

"Dear me, Wiggy!" said Nurse Jane, "you stop and fuss so over such little things as ants, it's a wonder you ever get anywhere."

"It is the little things that count in this world, Nurse Jane" laughed Uncle Wiggily, with a jolly twinkle of his pink nose. "The big things seem to take care of themselves, but the little things often need looking after. I was glad to help the tiny ant lady."

"Well, if you keep on stopping every minute to help ants and grasshoppers we'll never get where we're going," said Nurse Jane.

"Where are we going" asked the bunny. "You asked me to come walking with you, but you didn't tell me we were going any special place."

"We're going to have tea with Aunt Lettie, the goat lady," said Nurse Jane, "and you have stopped so often, first to help a lightning bug out of the brook, next to take a splinter out of the wing of a bee and now to help the ant lady out of the sticky gum—we have stopped so often that I'm afraid we'll be late."

"Oh, I hope not," said Uncle Wiggily. "We'll hurry along now." And he and Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy were hurrying when, all of a sudden, they passed some wild rose bushes. And on one stem was a sad, drooping rose. It hung over, almost touching the ground so that the sun could not shine on it, the rain could not give it a drink and no one could look into the heart of the rose and see how beautiful it was.

"Oh, you poor drooping rose!" cried Uncle Wiggily as he saw the flower. "The strong wind has bent you over when you ought to stand up straight."

"Yes," whispered the rose, "I've tried and tried to straighten up by myself, but I can't. I am the last rose of summer, Uncle Wiggily, and all the other roses are gone. I'm left here alone, and I wanted to perfume the air and let every one see my bright petals. But all I can do is to droop away down in the weeds."

"That is soon mended!" laughed the bunny. "Since your stem is too weak to hold you up straight, I'll drive a stake in the ground and fasten you to it. Then you will no longer droop."

"Oh, thank you!" whispered the rose.

"Dear me!" fussed Nurse Jane. "If you're going to stop again, Uncle Wiggily, I'm not going to wait for you! We'll be late for Aunt Lettie's tea!"

"You trot along, Nurse Jane," said the bunny. "I'll stop and tie up this drooping rose and then I'll join you."

So while Nurse Jane sniffed and went on, Uncle Wiggily drove a long straight stick in the ground beside the rose and, with a piece of wild grape vine for a string, fastened the flower to the stick, so it could nod in the breeze, so the sun could shine on it, the rain kiss it and so every one who passed could see the beauty and smell the perfume of the rose.

"Thank you!" whispered the rose, as Uncle Wiggily hopped away. "I hope I didn't scratch you too many times with my thorns."

"No, hardly any," said the bunny. Then he hopped on to

"I am the last rose of summer."

where Nurse Jane was having tea at Aunt Lettie's. He was late and the tea was cold, but he didn't mind that. "I helped the rose," said Uncle Wiggily.

As Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane were going home, toward evening, as they passed some thick bushes, all of a sudden the Fuzzy Fox leaped out, gnashing his teeth and growling:

"I want ears! I want ears to nibble!"

"Oh dear!" cried Nurse Jane. "Save me from the Fox, Uncle Wiggily!"

But before the bunny could do anything all at once there was a rustling in the bushes as the wind blew among them, and a voice cried:

"Run along, Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane. I'll hold the Fox fast by my thorns so he can't chase you. I'll hold the Fox until you get safely home."

"Who are you?" asked the bunny.

"The drooping rose you helped, was the answer. "The wind has blown out my long, thorny branches, and I have angled my thorns in the bushy tail of the Fox. He can't get loose."

"Oh, wow! Yes I can, too!" howled the Fox. But when he tried to pull himself away from the thorns of the rose bush they held him all the faster, and he couldn't get away until Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane were safe in the hollow stump bungalow.

"Wiggily, you were right to say it is the little things that count," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "It has been a lesson to me."

And if the knife doesn't chase the fork all around the table and make the plate spin like a top, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the butter cup.

They Say That

City zoning is really a branch of city planning, although in some localities they have been inaugurated as separate movements. The general idea which lies back of each—that a city, to be beautiful must also be planned, efficient and directed in its growth—has spread rapidly. All of the sixteen largest cities of this country have undertaken some form of city planning, either the replanning and improvement of existing arrangements or the foresighted arrangefor future development. An article in the National Real Estate Journal states that, before 1900, only two cities had begun city planning. Between 1901 and 1905 three more cities took it up. Twenty-six cities joined the movement between 1906 and 1910; 38 cities between 1911 and 1915; and 51 cities between 1916 and 1920. It is expected that more than 100 cities will start similar work before 1925.

The American city of the future should be a more orderly, more healthful, more efficient and more beautiful place than any yet developed.

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By Ralph Brown, Radio Engineer

A SIMPLY OPERATED RADIO SET

This panel employing three tubes—one radio frequency amplifier, a detector and one step of audio frequency on a two and a half foot loop—gave very excellent results recently at one of the radio shows. Standard parts are used in its assembly. A rheostat controls each tube individually. The tuning is accomplished by a condenser tending to simplify all tuning adjustments. Cabinet has a hinged top and access to tubes is easily obtained. Finish is of mahogany and bakelite is used for the panel. A solenoid type of loop is used, having ten turns spaced one inch apart. Plugs and jacks are furnished on either end of cabinet, one for the loop and the other for the loud speaker. Simplicity in operation has been the keynote in this type and it is admirably suited for broadcast reception.

Waltons Back Home From 1250-Mile Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Walton of 670 West Lexington drive and Dr. and Mrs. Frank Werner of 106 East Wilson avenue have returned from a 1250 mile motor trip made in Mr. Walton's new Buick Four. The party left Glendale on July 28 and after an all night's travel reached Big Bear Lake. A visit of two days was made there at one of the Lankershim cottages, where great sport was found in fishing and horseback riding. Several good catches of fish were secured by the men folks.

From Big Bear the party of Glendale residents traveled to San Francisco, stopping along the coast route at Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Kings City. While in San Francisco a hurried tour of Chinatown and other points of interest was made. After a visit in Oakland a quick trip through Yosemite National Park was enjoyed, and from there the next stop was at Merced, where extremely warm weather was encountered. Bakersfield was the next stop, the party resting there for several hours. On account of the hot weather the trip from Bakersfield to Glendale was made by moonlight, and proved very delightful.

Carry 'Home Town Moniker' on Auto

A prominent Glendalian, active in civic affairs, urges motorists of this city to label their cars neatly to indicate that their home "parking place" is Glendale. If you know the Rhoades hereabouts, you know him.

"Motor cars traveling in the U. S. have done much to advertise the states from which they hail, as denoted by their state registration plates," he says. "Californians traveling by auto in the North, East, or South, are stopped and questioned by earnest information-seekers.

"Recently a commendable tendency has developed in some cities and towns to have all local motorists carry a pennant or sign bearing the name of the town. The latest and most practical permanent signs are the metal ones which attach above or below the registration number.

"Many Glendale autoists are already carrying this excellent advertising medium for their city, but from my observation of cars here I can see opportunity for a seventy-per cent increase in the number of such signs in use."

Conduct hath the loudest tongue.

ABOUT GIFT SHOPS

Who says the world isn't getting better?

I have just revisited one of the summer resorts of my childhood, and in the spot where there once stood a souvenir store is a little shop labelled "Gift Shop."

Don't you call that a step forward?

You ask me why? Go into your attic if you have one and unearth some of the things that you brought home from your summer vacation or that people brought you to prove that they had really been to the places they said they had, and then go into a modern gift shop and I am sure you will admit that its contents are a step forward.

That Dreadful Bric-a-Brac

Do you remember the old hair receivers or ash trays with Saratoga Springs or Niagara Falls painted on them, the jewel boxes concocted of innumerable small shells; the pin cushions made of a shell with a red velvet cushion glued onto it; the wooden pin trays with pictures of the state house or the federal building or the Grand Central railway station painted on them?

Do you remember the miniature bean pots and Plymouth Rocks and models of the White House?

Do you remember how these things stood around on mantels and wall brackets and parlor tables and were dusted a few thousand times and finally carried off into the attic by a new generation?

And then go into the next gift shop and see what you see there.

Things to Use!

Some souvenirs, yes, some of the eternal bric-a-brac, yes, but a great deal more of the immediately useful. The last gift shop I visited had handkerchiefs, silk stockings, dresses, sweaters, blouses, some really practical leather goods, and summer furs obtained from a local man. It also had some junk to be sure, including a few articles with the name of the place duly painted on them. But the majority of the stuff was something that would be used instead of stood on the mantel to be dusted until another generation swept it into the attic—or, since attics will presumably be almost as scarce as hen's teeth by that time, into the ash can.

One Expects the Tax

True, the gift shop tax was placed on those articles, but when one buys at a shop that has a short season one reckons on that.

And it is also true that some gift shops perpetrate some extraordinary junk in the name of fancy work. A neighbor told me of a shop where they are selling fly killers embroidered in colored worsteds! Incidentally she commended the idea!

But on the whole, I think that this gift shop granddaughter of the souvenir store is more sensible, more sane and more beautiful than its ancestor.

Who says the world isn't growing better?

Togatowels Latest Seashore Sensation for Atlantic City

Here is the latest beach sensation, seen at Atlantic City for the first time. This new bit of apparel was introduced following the issuance of a new ordinance forbidding bathers from walking through the streets clad only in beach costumes. The togatowel is a brightly colored garment and takes the place of a dress, and may be used as a towel following the plunge into the ocean.

Practical Housekeeping by Florence Austin Chase.....

DAIRY DISHES

In summer, when our menus contain little or no meat, one of the many delicious dairy dishes will be found palpatable and assist in providing a well-balanced meal.

Cottage Cheese Pie—Beat the whites and yolks of four eggs separately. To the beaten yolks add one and one-half cups granulated sugar, beating thoroughly; then add the grated rind and juice of one large lemon. Pass one pound cottage cheese through a colander, and add it to the first mixture; lastly fold the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs.

Line a pie pan with raw crust, pour in the mixture, and bake in a moderate oven 30 to 35 minutes.

Cheese, Pear and Nut Salad—Fill center of large plate with creamed cheese passed through a ricer. Peel and core ripe firm pears (3 or 4) fill centers with chopped nuts and finely-cut crisp celery; sprinkle chopped nuts over cheese and serve with mayonnaise.

Cheese Custards—Beat four eggs until very light; add one-half cup boiling milk, one-fourth cup cheese (or grated cheese may be used) season with one-half teaspoon salt, dash of white and red pepper. Stir well and pour in small buttered moulds, or cups. Stand cups in pan, pour in hot water to within one inch of top of cups, and cook in slow oven until custard is set. Serve on rounds of hot, buttered toast and garnish with parsley.

Cheese Tarts—Mix one cup of cottage cheese, four tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, three well-beaten eggs, rind and juice of one large lemon, one-half cup chopped citron and one-half cup of seeded raisins, together. Beat well and fill tart pans, which have been lined with pastry. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes. When ready to serve garnish tops of tarts with sweetened whipped cream and a few chopped nuts.

Cheese and Tomato Sandwiches—Peel large, even-sized ripe tomatoes in rather thin slices, sprinkle with vinegar, salt and pepper. Serve with a thin slice of cheese between two slices of the tomato, and placing a small round of the cheese on top. Garnish with parsley.

Butter Milk Muffins—Sift together one, of white flour, one and one-quarter cups of entire wheat (or graham), half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon soda. Mix one-third cup of molasses with one buttermilk and mix and stir into dry ingredients. Beat well, turn into buttered and slightly floured muffin pans and bake in a hot oven for 25 minutes.

Buttermilk Griddle Cakes—Mix two cups flour, two tablespoons cornmeal, one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon soda together. Mix one cup of buttermilk, one-half cup sweet milk and one tablespoon melted butter and add to dry ingredients. Beat well; drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle. Cook on one side; when puffed, full of bubbles and cooked on edges, turn and cook other side. Serve hot with butter and syrup or honey.

Sour Milk Doughnuts—Beat one egg until light and add one cup sugar, one cup sour milk, and one one and one-half tablespoons melted cooking fat. Mix and sift four cups flour, one teaspoon soda, three teaspoons baking powder, one and one-half teaspoons salt and one teaspoon grated nutmeg, and add to first mixture. Toss on a floured board, knead slightly, pat and roll to one-fourth inch in thickness, shape with doughnut cutter, first dipped in flour, dry in deep fat; drain on brown paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Washington Law College Dean Is 70 Years of Age

Miss Emma Gillett, dean of the Washington College of Law, Washington, D. C., celebrated her 70th birthday anniversary July 30. A dinner was given in her honor by prominent women lawyers and club women of Washington. Miss Gillett is the only woman dean of a law school in the country; and is a senior member of the bar.

Beauty Chats by Edna Kent Forbes

ANSWERED LETTERS

S. G. B.—It would take a long time to change the shape of the nose by means of a mechanical device. You would lose many hours of needed rest, as these contrivances are usually worn all night.

Kitty Kat—The lifeless appearance of your skin is likely due to a run-down state. You are perhaps in need of more oxygen, or a tonic to enrich the blood. If you are about to have a vacation the rest will build you up. If you are not vacationing, indulge yourself in outings as often as possible. Continue to use the cream as such a skin needs it every day. Dash cold water over the face and throat to close the pores after each cleansing. Do this regardless of whether cream or soap and warm water has been used.

Parisienne—There is nothing but a dye that will tint your hair dark brown unless it is walnut juice. If you use the henna merely as a shampoo the natural shade of your hair will remain as it is, except for the least tinge. The reason for your hair taking on this reddish color is because you are applying the hot henna paste to it for an unusually long time. Three minutes is sufficient when one wants to retain one's own shade and merely tint the grey strands so they will not be so noticeable.

Puzzled—I should think a tall and dignified girl, such as you are, would be very attractive with a coronet braid around her head. Very few girls have enough hair to allow them to adopt this charming style. You have and are also the type for it. I do not wonder that your friends object because you are now packing your hair into a thick net.

Lulu—Since you are almost 20 pounds underweight, in addition to having a skin full of pimples, it is evident that you are not assimilating all of the food you are taking. Often when people are affected as you are, they gain in weight through abstaining from rich food and live on a simple diet. This gives the system a chance to make a complete new start and the digestion improves so the body takes on weight.

S. S. S.—Cocoa butter should never be used on the face as it is such a heavy oil; also it is possible that some of it will remain on the skin to attract soil. It is this combination of oil and dirt which will cause blackheads and induce hair to grow. Cocoa butter is very nourishing, however, and can be used on any other part of the body.

A nourishing cream made from fine oils is what you should use for the face and throat. Daily treatment with such a cream, and an occasional use of an astringent should rid you of these fine lines that are just appearing.

Tomorrow—Have You Exercised This Summer?

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Porto Rico Women Out After Suffrage

WASHINGTON. — The women of Porto Rico will have their faith in the government of the United States renewed when Senorita Mercedes Sola, editor of Women of the Twentieth Century, the women's monthly magazine of the island, returns home.

Miss Sola has been in the United States for two months, where she has attended the conference of the League of Women Voters in Baltimore, after which she was received by Mrs. Harding at the White House and by Secretary of War Weeks, with whom she discussed present-day problems in Porto Rico.

"I must say those interviews have increased my respect for the good intentions of the people in charge of the government," said Miss Sola. "After talking with Mr. Weeks for an hour I left the office with the impression that he had a deep, conscientious feeling toward Porto Rico and a sympathy with our rights."

Miss Sola said that the women of Porto Rico expect to get the vote inside of two years. The intelligent people in Porto Rico are all in favor of woman suffrage, she said, and the Social and Suffrage League of Porto Rico has been working for it for five years.

"It took seventeen years to win woman suffrage in the United States," added Miss Sola. "so if we get it within two years that will not be so bad."

The education of women is the same as that of men in the island, Miss Sola said. Women attend the University of Porto Rico at San Juan, and, although not many of them have gone so far, yet a small group have blazed the trail by taking up medicine, law and pharmacy, just like the men. Women have the same civil rights as men, go out for the same government offices and get the same salary for their work.

A great many women go into the teaching profession. There are 3286 teachers in the schools of the island, only 500 of whom are Americans, and the rest are Porto Ricans. Of these Porto Ricans 5 per cent are women. Many of the best Porto Rican women teachers come to the United States, where they teach Spanish in our schools, Miss Sola said.

Diet and Health By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

DIET IN PREGNANCY

That diet is of the greatest importance throughout life is a fact which cannot be refuted.

There are two periods in life, however, in which the importance of the diet must be given special emphasis. Those periods are during childhood—the growth period; and during pregnancy—which could also be called a growth period.

The saying that a pregnant woman must eat for two is literally true. However, because she must eat for two and that fact is usually emphasized to her, the tendency has been for her to overeat at this period. Instead of eating for two, she has eaten enough for three or more and, in consequence, may have grown very fat or may have brought on a toxemia—a poisoning—both of herself and her baby.

The same foods that fatten the mother will fatten the baby. This is extremely undesirable. It makes the labor very much more difficult in two ways. The fat in the mother narrows the birth passage and the fat on the baby enlarges the baby. This makes two factors for difficult delivery.

Now, while a mother must eat for two, it must be remembered that this second life really does not begin to need any more nourishment than can ordinarily be furnished by the mother in her usual diet, until the last four or five months of pregnancy.

The size or stature of a baby is determined by heredity, but the amount of fat on the baby can be, to a great extent, controlled by the mother.

It used to be considered a cause of rejoicing to report the birth of a ten-pound baby, but it is not considered so any longer. Seven to seven and a half pounds is a good, husky weight for any baby to start out with. If they seem a little under fat for their size, they can rapidly gain enough fat under the right conditions; and it is much better for them to gain fat after they are born, both for themselves and for the mothers.

In the diet of the prospective mother, the growth needs for the normal development of the baby and the needs for the maintenance of her own health must be considered.

If the materials for the maintenance for the health of the mother are furnished in the diet, the baby will also be supplied the materials for growth. For we have found that the same diet which is conducive to the best health of the adult, is conducive to the best growth in the child.

If the materials for the growth of the baby are lacking in the food of the mother, they will be drawn from the mother's body. The reason that many prospective mothers save softening of the teeth and dental caries, is due to the fact that her diet is deficient in the calcium and phosphorous necessary for the development of the bone and teeth formation of the baby, and so these have been drawn from the mother's own bones and teeth.

A diet very deficient in the calcium and phosphorous elements would eventually affect the baby, as well as the mother.

Beginning with the fifth month of pregnancy, growth of the baby is very rapid, but the actual amount of building material is not very large. An increase of one-fifth, or 20 per cent., of the mother's usual daily supply should amply cover the needs of the baby. Less than this should be allowed if the mother is overfat or has lessened her activities markedly.

A woman of sedentary habits ordinarily requires from 2000 to 2200 C's per day. This increase, then, would mean that she should have from 2400 to 2700 C's per day during the later half of the pregnancy.

Book Reviews

"The New Heavens," by G. E. Hale, director of the Mount Wilson observatory, is a brief account of the very latest discoveries in the astronomical field.

"The Cowboy," by P. A. Rollins, treats that individual as an important character in the social and industrial development of the west instead of the picturesque hero of a western thriller.

"The Three Godfathers," by Peter B. Kyne is one of the fiction books which have been added to the shelves at the Glendale branch library at Los Feliz and Brand boulevard. It is a very beautiful story showing how love of a little child can kindle the divine spark which is to be found even in the most depraved of human beings.

Others books recently released for distribution at this library include the following:

"South," by Sir Ernest Shackleton.

"The Congo and Other Poems," by Lindsay.

"Creative Chemistry," by Slosson.

"The American Novel" and "Contemporary American Novelists," by Van Doren.

"Manual of Gardening," by L. H. Bailey.

"Principles of Human Geography," by Huntington and Cushing.

"A Straight Deal or the Ancient Grudge," by Wister.

"The Love Match," a play by Arnold Bennett.

In the juvenile department will be found "Black Beauty," by Sewell.

"The Wild Heart," by Squier.

"The Satin-Wood Box," by Trowbridge.

"The Voyages of Capt. Scott," by Turley. "Young People's History of the World War," by Benezet. "My life with the Eskimo," by Stefanson.

Service That Fulfills Promise

He will succeed, for he believes all he says.
—Mirabeau.

Earnestness of purpose is one of the indispensable factors of success. To hold public confidence, one's promises and declarations of policy must be carried out in every business dealing.

In the profession of undertaking, or any other, just as in merchandising, promise of fair dealing and faithful service can bring success only when he who utters it believes all he says, and carries out in action the principles on which he invites patronage.

The L. G. Scovern Co. not only declares for fair dealing, lowest pricing, faithful service, but completely believes in such principles, and carries them out in every day's work. Which is one explanation for Scovern preeminence in its chosen field.

Beer Keg Cork Pops Man In Eye; He Sues

AKRON, Ohio—An 'unsuitable cork," which popped from a keg full of temperance drink known as "cream beer," is responsible for the suit for $50,950 alleged damages filed by Jacob Burger against the Renner Products company.

Declaring that the company had failed to tip him off that the keg of beer would generate a "kick," or gas, Burger told the court that he lost twelve weeks of his time, the sight of his right eye and 25 per cent of the vision of his other eye.

Burger stated that when he bought the temperance drink the company gave him something to put into the keg "to make the beer suitable to the trade."

The cork, designated by Burger as "unsuitable," hit him in the right eye.

Joe Maier Resigns; Is Going to Needles

President Joe Maier of the Glendale Delta Kappa Nu fraternity resigned at last night's meeting and Advertising Manager Earl R. Hammond was elected to fill the vacancy incurred by ex-President Maier's departure for Needles, Calif., September 1.

The other officers were unaffected by the change in the presidency. They are Gail Kennedy, V. P.; Sabin Buck, Sec.; Edw. Smith, Treas.; Orrin Banes and Roy Mason, directors.

Encouragement for South Brand Folks

South Brand boulevard between Colorado street and Windsor road is to be repaved sometime between now and Christmas. Contract for this work was let about three weeks ago to Contractor George R. Curtis of Los Angeles. He will be given three months to complete the job from the time he starts work. Now that the water and gas pipes have been laid it is anticipated that he will have his equipment on the job in a few weeks.

RECOVERS HIS AUTO

H. T. Moore of 137 South Pacific avenue today is rejoicing in the recovery of his Oakland roadster which was "borrowed" for a few hours last night. Mr. Moore is foreman of the Green & McClellan garage at 115 West Harvard street.

BREAKS HIS ANKLE

Ed. Zimmerman of Los Angeles is at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital with a broken right ankle received in an accident last night.

AT GLENDALE SANITARIUM

BOY'S DEATH FROM BITE OF SNAKE CAUSES DRIVE

Spring Lake Residents In New Jersey Strive to Prevent New Tragedy

SPRING LAKE, N. P., Aug. 15. Snake hunting parties have been formed here in efforts to rid this district of poisonous reptiles which are believed to have infested the neighborhood in increasing numbers during the summer.

The drive against snakes was organized following the death of 8-year-old Franklin Manix Gifford, Jr., who succumbed after suffering excruciating agony for the better part of a week.

In the opinion of the doctors he was bitten by a rattlesnake. A copperhead is within the possibilities.

The boy's right leg, where the bite was inflicted, swelled up to the size of the trunk of a tree. Pus gathered about the knee and the boy suffered frightfully.

For the latter part of his stay in the hospital he was delirious, recovering consciousness occasionally, and then only for a few moments.

Raves About 'Black Snake'

He raved constantly about "the black snake with the white throat" and begged the doctors and nurses to help him kill it.

In one of the lad's rational moments Dr. Clarence Morris, of the hospital staff, said to him:

"Franklin, you will be all right."

"I know I will."

"You have got to fight hard."

"I am fighting."

But some time after this conversation the boy's respiration jumped to 168 from 30 normal, and he had a fever of 108. At 1 o'clock in the morning his pulse seemed to have stopped, yet the child continued to live for two hours. This, the doctors said, was extraordinary.

Bitten Near Home

The lad was not merely the favorite of a family of five brothers, three of whom are older and one younger than he, but was well liked throughout the village.

He was bitten in a field near his home. His mother had started to take the cow into the field. Franklin took the rope from her, saying:

"Mother, let me do that; it's no work for a woman."

He took the cow and started to lead it to pasture. He had proceeded only a few steps in the grass when Mrs. Gifford noticed that he stopped and began striking at something in the grass. He ran, picked up an axe and pursued some object his mother could not see. Then he returned limping. His mother asked him what was the matter, and he replied:

"I think I dropped the axe on my foot."

Whether he did not realize he had been bitten by the snake, or was trying to deceive his mother and spare her a fright no one knows. Dr. Clarence Morris was summoned later and even he did not suspect at first it was a snake bite.

Ontario Offers Work For Glendale Women

Women, and girls over sixteen, are in immediate demand for cannery work at Ontario to save the peach crop, according to a letter received by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce from the Ontario chamber.

"Our peach crop is very large, and the supreme weather has hastened the ripening to such degree that we shall require outside help," the communication states. "Rooms and apartments may be obtained at reasonable prices, and women may apply here or at Stearan's cannery at Wineville."

BROWN BIKE STOLEN

A brown bicycle with taped handlebars and without mudguards belonging to Walter Andress, was stolen yesterday afternoon from 144 South Brand boulevard from the curb in front of the Glendale Candy shop.

Golden Trout Are Reminders of Past

The golden days of ye past and the golden trout of today are both in evidence in the vicinity of Mammoth Camp, according to Harry E. McCartney, whose vacation fish-story was published in the NEWS yesterday with a substantiating picture of Mrs. McCartney holding aloft two great Loch Leven trout.

Pine City was the name of the extinct gold-mining camp of '79 which the McCartneys visited. The proof of the city today rests largely upon the graveyard which accommodates 5,000 dead miners on the outskirts of the once famous town where 15,000 persons sought the yellow wealth that lubricates the world's marts into activity. But a scourge, not unlike the recent epidemic of influenza, killed off many of the inhabitants at a time when the gold was thinning out, and Pine City languished and slowly died as its graveyard grew. Today the city of the dead is but a reminder of the Pine City that once lived and worked and played and fought and drank!

Phone Company Tries Keeping Up-to-Date

The number of homes and of business establishments in Glendale is increasing so rapidly that surveys for telephone installation cannot be made very far in advance, according to Manager Fred Deal of the Glendale office, Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company.

In order to assure this territory its pro-rata of equipment and materials during the present era of rapid expansion, Mr. Deal now has ten men assigned to making a house count of the Glendale section. The so-called "house count" really made the assembling of much valuable data on progress, growth and business.

E. V. BEST GETS BACK

E. V. Best of 1317 South Central avenue is now back at work in the grocery department at 1405 South San Fernando road in the market of A. E. Bradshaw. He was absent three weeks vacationing.

Sport High Spots

James S. Bradley of Fresno caught a 4½ lb. bass in Bass Lake, Madera County, Calif., last week according to the Southern Pacific's weekly fishing report from its agents. Other big catches reported from Bass Lake were a 3½ and a 4 lb. bass by S. B. McEwen of Long Beach and a 4 lb. bass by Mrs. Geo. C. Aydelott of Sanger.

The report states that with the streams low and clear and the weather warm, fishing is good throughout the state. Fly fishing is unusually good.

Many fine catches are reported from Dunsmuir, Sisson, Bray Klamath Falls, Cisco, Truckee, Lake Tahoe and southern California resorts.

Paul Strand, Salt Lake's heavy hitting outfielder-first baseman, continues to hold the lead among the batters of the Pacific Coast League, averages just released showing him clipping the old onion at the merry rate of .389. Strand, who has had his mark well over .400 during most of the season, fell down a few points during the past two series, losing practically twenty digits. Duffy Lewis, playing manager of the Utes, still clings to the runner-up position, although his .382 average is but three points ahead of Sammy Hale of Portland.

The most noticeable slump of the past two weeks has been that of Red Smith, Vernon's fighting third baseman. After hovering around .370 for three months he suddenly dropped twenty points and is now seventh in the list with .350. Griggs, the pride of the Angels, is three notches ahead of Smith, his average of .352 putting him in fifth place.

Just for the sake of "rubbing it in" Dots Miller and his pesky San Francisco Seals yesterday gained another half game toward the pennant by trimming Salt Lake in the only game played in the coast league. The final score was 3 to 1, San Francisco confining all of their scoring efforts in a single inning—the third. Paddy Shea hurled for the "Pacemakers," while Duffy Lewis' hired hands played behind "Lucky" McCabe. Each twirler granted nine hits.

San Francisco, with but six or seven weeks to go, is leading the second place Tigers by the impressive margin of six games, while eleven contests separate the Angels from first place. It seems to be nothing but a 'Frisco year and nothing short of a George Stallings "Miracle Man" stunt by one of the other clubs can keep the gonfalon from flaunting in Bay City breezes next season.

'HACK' AND MONDT SHOW ELKS REAL WRESTLING

Johnny Myers Holds Steve Dalton; Other Events on Bill Good

By HOWARD M'GILLIS

With the advantage first with one and then with the other John "Young" Hackensmidt of Glendale and Toots Mondt of Greeley, Colo., last night battled to a standstill at the local Elks' clubhouse in the best wrestling bout ever staged in the city. The match was held in connection with the big jinx and entertainment conducted for "Bills" for the benefit of the band of Glendale Lodge No. 1289.

The local grappler completely redeemed himself for his recent defeat at the hands of the Coloradoan, the latter having obtained a fall several weeks ago only after Hackensmidt had sprained his arm.

The two men were out for a finish struggle, which, had not the time limit been set at one hour, might still be under way. Soon after Referee Orlando Miller set the fireworks going Mondt made a vicious grab for Hack's pedal extremity, causing the 700 enthusiastic rooters to cry for the first fall. But the square shouldered Glendalian was more than equal to the occasion, quickly reversing the hold with his adversary next to the canvas.

Change Their Holds

Soon tiring of trying the famous toe hold the huskies changed to body scissors, wrist locks, half nelsons, headlocks and various other tricks of the art. But it was not in the cards for a fall to be made, the underdog cleverly squirming out of apparently decisive nolds time after time. Probably the most exciting moments of the event happened during the latter stages of the bout, Hackensmiht practically paralyzing Mondt's left arm with a peculiarly twisting wrist lock for fully five minutes. However, both wrestlers showed consistent bursts of pep and energy throughout the match, the draw decision being the only logical verdict.

Myers Holds Dalton

Sharing in the brilliancy of the evening's features was the four round boxing bout between Johnny Myers, Glendale's "fighting fireman," and Steve Dalton, the pride of the Los Angeles squad of middleweights. Like the wrestling bout the battle ended in a draw. Myers coming back strongly in the latter part of the fight after being outpointed by "The Wild Wop," as the good natured Italian mitt artist is known to Vernon fight fans, in the first two sessions.

In the second round Myers was sent to the floor for the count of six as the result of having come in contact with one of Dalton's snappy left-handed haymakers. As this was the first time in Myers' history of seventy-four battles that he had been knocked off his feet he immediately decided that it was time to get busy, which he did by leading into Steve's attack during the rest of the going.

Ralph Myers Bested

Ralph Myers, 128-pound brother of Johnny, lost a close decision to "Dummy" Wellin of Los Angeles in the semi-windup set-to, the trusty southpaw soupbone of "Dummy" being too intricate to be solved by Myers. In the latter part of their match Myers confined himself almost entirely to infighting and clinching, in this way preventing Wellin from slipping over a "heartbreaker."

The curtain-raiser, which latter proved to be the prize event of the program, was a two-round slugging match between Billy Bailey and "Dummy" Shimmie, aged 9 and 10, respectively. Both youngsters fought from beginning to end, which, as stated by the ever-present clever ringsider, was done because "they didn't know any better." Billy Bailey, almost four inches shorter than his rival, was awarded the decision following a continuous volley of uppercuts, "egg crate wallops," etc. Harry McCartney acted as referee for the boxing matches.

The remainder of the evening was enjoyed in band music, several selections by Bill Bode and Herb Henning, and the customary aftermeeting "feed" in the Jinx hall.

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 15.—Women's tennis in America has ceased to be a sport. It is now a competitive bromide. There was no more interest in the first round of the national woman's singles at the West Side Tennis club yesterday than if the affair had been a lecture on the growth and development of cold slaw. There probably will be no increase of interest today or tomorrow or the next day.

Mrs. Molla Mallory so completely dominates the situation that both spectators and contestants are taking the championship tournament as a matter of course.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, a champion of 18 years ago, and the mother of three children, is the only entry in the fields that figures to make Mrs. Mallory extend herself. That is the top-off on the situation.

In 18 years American tennis has developed no woman player who can make the present champion step at her best.

The World Over

By Franklin B. Morse
Pacific Sports Service

While lightweight champion Benny Leonard was more or less mussed up in a couple of his recent fights, the fact remains that his superiority over his opponents is such that it looks as if his title would not be in any serious jeopardy for some time to come. Leonard should still have several years of active athletic life before he really begins the retrograde movement.

Leonard's mode of life is such that he is more or less in condition all the time. Unlike the heavyweight champion, Benny is not a habitue of the pleasure zone which starts business about the time the general run of folks begin to consider getting between the sheets. Were it not for this, Dempsey's hold on the heavy title would be just as secure as Leonard's on the lightweight crown, but Dempsey is likely to come a cropper by defeating himself. There is no question but that he has gone back since he fought Jess Willard.

Jess Willard, in Los Angeles, is making a frantic effort to make the public believe that he can get himself into shape for another bout with Dempsey. It may be that Willard really believes this miracle a possibility, but he is not likely to get anyone who knows anything about athletes and condition to agree with him.

In sending out photographs of himself as further evidence of the plausibility of his claim, Willard has succeeded in doing the very opposite thing from what he wanted to do. They furnish conclusive proof of the utter futility of any training Willard may undergo. The photos show that Willard no longer has an athlete's frame. Not a muscle shows. He looks fat and pudgy. His stomach has caught up with his chest.

The effort made by Jim Jeffries to come back still is remembered. Willard looks less fit than did Jeff when he made his ill-starred move. It isn't necessary to go to Los Angeles to determine this. The pictures are sufficient for anyone with half an eye to condition. Willard no longer could recuperate in the minute intermission between rounds. He would be a blown and tired man before he had gone a half dozen rounds. Then he would merely repeat the part of a chopping block he assumed in his last match. If his defeat was pitiful before, the next one would be a horror.

Nine men out of ten men you talk to on the street will not give Willard a look in against Dempsey. Under the circumstances would the nine pay exorbitant prices to see the men rematched. It does not seem likely.

Dempsey Training for Brennan Match

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 15.—Jack Dempsey today began training for his ten round bout with Bill Brennan here on Labor day afternoon. The big fellow, already looking in splendid trim, expects to easily round into shape for the mauler who gave him such a rough session at their last meeting in New York City and his training quarters in a big cottage along the lake, recently occupied by Governor Len Small, are ideal.

Bill Brennan, still a little overweight, has been at the training grind for several days and is tearing off the excess baggage by steady road work.

Arrangements for handling the crowd Labor day were perfected today by Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons. Special trains bearing fight fans will unload close to the big bowl in which the setto will take place.

KENDRICK TURNS INDIAN

WACO, Texas, Aug. 15.—Jimmy Kendrick, who hit 31 home runs in local semi-professional baseball this season, has been signed by the Cleveland Indians and will report at once, it was announced today.

DEMAND FOR HORSE SHOES IS NOW INCREASING

Why Equine Quadruped Is Yet Produced, Explained by Popularity of Game

Why are horses still bred in these days of autos and Fords?

At a special jousting-place in Glendale Verdugo park during tomorrow's community picnic, several score men—young, old, middle-aged, short, tall, fat, skinny, and otherwise—will demonstrate the sport which makes horses necessary and should be filled with good luck for all contenders if the presence of horse shoes is any indication.

"Horseshoes" — an Americanized quoits game—is all the rage now. It started its second rage of popularity at Long Beach, jumped to Iowa and Oklahoma and New York; then came spreading out on its way back to infect intermediate points like Glendale and Los Angeles. Today there is a National Horseshoe Players' Association with more than 50,000 paid-up members, and expert guessers estimate that 250,000 people are incurable addicts of the game.

Game Requires Skill

The game is simple to understand, looks foolish, but has all the requirements of skill that anyone needs anticipate developing in a lifetime. Here's a list of the local men who have entered the big prize horseshoe contest at the picnic tomorrow.

A. D. Schindler, J. F. Pettit, George McBride, Walter P. Burger, E. D. Reynolds, Alvy Gingrish, Glen B. Porter, A. W. Austin, W. A. Burns, S. E. Blatchleg, L. H. Beck, C. A. Beardsley, T. H. Christy, J. L. Denney, W. M. Holman, D. T. Keim, John Langford, A. L. Pecoy, Geo. F. Paine, W. N. Shield, C. A. Suitor, H. H. Schumaker, Homer Wellman and R. C. Young.

Dave Will Be Unable to Wear a Hat Now

NEW YORK, Aug. 15. — The first of New York's state self-created boxing titles goes to Dave Rosenberg of Brooklyn. He earned the decision over Phil Krug of Newark, N. J., after fifteen rounds of slow fighting at the Velodrome last night and as a result falls heir to middleweight champion of the world in the eyes of the New York State Athletic commission. This body declared Johnny Wilson's title vacant some months ago when the latter failed to accept a challenge from Harry Greb.

LEWIS RETAINS TITLE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 15.—Ed (Strangler) Lewis retained his heavyweight wrestling title today, following his defeat here last night of Jacintra Gobar, Hindu aspirant, in two straight falls. Lewis used headlocks in securing both falls, the first in 31 minutes, 45 seconds and the second in 11 minutes 46 seconds.

Lieutenant Tale—"They say Captain Jinks was very calm and collected after his accident this morning."

Colonel Spin—"Yes, yes, quite calm—he's still being collected."

Tagging All Bases

The Cardinals sank for the third but not the last time when Alexander pitched the Cubs to an 8 to 6 victory. The latter got to Haines for an early lead and were never headed, although late inning rallies made it look close. It was the third straight defeat for the Cards and dropped them two full games behind the Giants.

Glazner held the Phillies to one hit in five innings and then blew up and the Pirates lost 10 to 1. It was the Phils' first victory of the season over the Pirates.

It was an off day in baseball. Most of the eastern clubs in the National league were taking Horace Greeley at his word and were headed west. Vice-versa in the American league.

POTTERS IN MOUNTAINS

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Potter and their son, Merle, of 725 East Elk street, are now spending a vacation at Idylwild in the San Bernardino mountains. Mr. Potter is credit manager for the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Company.

What is believed to be the thickest seam of black coal discovered in the world is being exploited in Queensland, Australia. The seam is entirely free from clay bands and is 93 feet thick in places. The mine is 280 miles from the nearest seaport.

CREDIT-ABLE BALL GAME SLATED BY MERCHANTS

Long Standing Feud to Be Settled on Diamond at Picnic Tomorrow

The mecca of mercantile interest at tomorrow's community picnic is the Baseball-Game-for-Blood between the Potter-Ites and the Butt-On headed respectively by Majors W. P. Potter and H. M. Butts of the Merchants' Credit Association. These gentlement have a standing feud passed down from the days of the Merchants' association membership contest, and, aided and abetted by other members, they plan to settle the affair by tomorrow's baseball duel.

It is deeply suspected that the game will be acted before noon, as there is an impression that following a hearty meal many of the knights of the diamond would not be able to swing the bat, let alone run from base to base in case they hit the ball.

The following line-up has been facetiously suggested for the team hand-picked by Major Butts for the express purpose of corraling the Potter team's goat, to-wit:

C. H. Kirkman, who is a stationery dealer cannot be expected to run bases, but he might hold one down, while Max E. Green auto supply at least part of a battery, together with R. C. Plume. C. J. Hatz should make an appeal to the ladies, any-wear. George B. Karr as a fielder can collar the ball any time it's cuffed.

Skimming the list of players, it will be found that Smith MacMullin is the cream of the talent; Jesse Smith, the Ford agent, is recommended as shortstop and R. L. Taylor—who's not a tailor a-tall but a plumber—can bowl the sphere in a way to trap any runner.

Vincent Salmacia is sure to add some scores to the sheet, although his training has been on the high-C's in the music world, while W. H. Hooper and Major H. M. Butts, team captain, radiate confidence in gaging the merits of the players, whose ability they insist is not inflated in transmission to the public.

Colonel Potter has some baseball timber from which to build a team. J. Ray Bentley himself is good at the stick and may head the batting list. Dan Kelty, the hardware man, will be expected to nail the runners off base. Owen Emery has been asked to coach the team, but some players have expressed the fear that he will bill them for legal advice.

Grocer Seymour Smith may feed the ball to the batters, while Val Hollister can bait them with hot ones. Rene Olin's accounting experience brings him into line for scorekeeping, and John Watson is said to be expert in trimming the cornice of the plate.

In reporting the game, Harry Moore could tine the story or polish it up a bit. S. C. Page furnishes good home material. H. E. Wilson can put the ball in a groove, and he's a hard batter to floor, but has a sharp tongue in criticising the umpire. George Bentley can furnish good finished support to any battery and is "joist" the man to hold down first.

All told, the opposing teams should put up a credit-able game due to their association with each other in the field of commerce in Glendale.

'While Satan Sleeps' Stars Jack Holt; Violinist Is Also Attraction

One of the best photo dramas presented in Glendale is "While Satan Sleeps," featuring Jack Holt. Ralph Allan offers it at the T. D. & L. theatre beginning today. It is unquestionably Holt's best and as a production has been compared with "The Miracle Man." The story is from the novel by Peter B. Kyne, one of America's foremost authors, and is big in plot, dramatic action and theme. It is stated that not to see "While Satan Sleeps" is to have missed a truly great picture, wonderfully enacted and made.

In addition to "While Satan Sleeps," Manager Allan, through the courtesy of the Shuck Music company of Glendale, has engaged Master Clyde Morris Gates, the violinist, to play at his theatre. Master Gates will be presented as an extraordinary featured number in concert and with the Ampico during Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening performances only. Of course, there is the usual special comedy and news weekly of latest events.

As a reminder, don't forget that Edna Wallace Hopper, the 61-year-old flapper who looks like a girl of 19, will appear personally at the T. D. & L. Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Leaky Pipes Cause Of Firemen's Losing Sleep Last Night

Leaking pipes were the cause of considerable grief on the part of the local firemen last night.

About 10 o'clock last night the department was called to the plant of the Superior Printing company at 104 South Isabel. It was found that a leak had developed in one of the gas pipes leading to the linotype, and a flame over a foot high was threatening the equipment.

The blaze was extinguished, and arrangements made for repairs.

After the firemen were all tucked into bed again, about 4 o'clock this morning a call came in from the Glendale Planing Mills at 216 North Howard. The night watchman there is said to be suffering an impediment in his speech, and the telephone central could not understand him. The call reached the fire department and the boys from No. 1 station made a fast run, since the mills are next a large lumber yard, and a large blaze was feared.

Upon reaching the mills, the firemen found that the excitement there consisted of a broken water pipe, and that the watchman had been unable to make the telephone girl understand whom he wanted.

Letter Carriers to Picnic on August 26

At a special meeting of Glendale Branch No. 1983, National Association of Letter Carries, held last night at the K. of P. hall with W. S. Hunt, president in charge, plans were completed for their first annual Letter Carriers' picnic, which will be held in the new Glendale Verdugo Park on Saturday, August 26.

An unusual program of games, dancing, races, sports, band concerts by the Letter Carriers' band and other features are being arranged. Among the attractions scheduled is a baseball game between the postal clerks and carriers. Tickets can be secured from any carrier and the proceeds are to go to the sick and death benefit fund.

Acting on the suggestion of Postmaster Jackson, at last night's meeting it was decided that all the letter carriers will attend the municipal picnic tomorrow in uniform.

Jack Millan for Treasurer, Visitor In Glendale Today

With a broad optimistic smile Jack Millan, candidate for state treasurer, arrived in Glendale today from a 12,000 mile campaign trip in northern California to establish his "Jack Millan for Treasurer" headquarters for Los Angeles county at the J. H. Searles home at 465 Patterson avenue. Mr. Millan is accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Jack T. Millan and his mother, Mrs. J. C. Millan, both of whom are as actively interested and engaged in his campaign as he.

San Francisco claims Mr. Millan as a native son and the hearty support the northern city is giving him has been voiced in an endorsement from Mayor James Rolph, by editorial and press compliments and by wide personal boosting. Sharing equally in the enthusiasm of San Francisco to see Jack Millan elected is the city of San Diego, where he and his family have made their home for several years and where Mr. Millan has served as city treasurer and has the record of having saved more money for the city by efficient management than any other treasurer in the city's history.

Just to impress their California friends with their high regard for "Jack," as he is known in the southern city, San Diegans joined last week in a postal card shower of the state, and, according to a long distance message received from San Diego last night, 25,000 postals boosting Millan for treasurer were to be mailed today.

From Glendale Mr. Millan plans a personal campaign of Los Angeles county, which he, like other candidates for state offices, considers the strategic seciton in the coming election.

Art Shop Has Views Of Municipal Park

The coming dedication of the new Glendale Verdugo city park and the big community picnic to be held there tomorrow has created a demand for photographic and art views of the beauty-spot. To supply that demand, the Little Art Shop, 309 Hawthorne street, Glendale, has taken a number of photographs which are now available to the public.

E. J. Morgans Home; Report Forest Fires

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Morgan and son of 1125 South Central avenue arrived home Sunday night from a fifteen-day motor trip north.

The Morgans made the trip up and back by the coast route and camped out en route. They spent five days in Oakland with relatives and then took a trip to the Redwood forest in the Big Basin territory.

On their way home they stopped in San Francisco, San Jose, Santa Cruz and Monterey and one of the interesting experiences of the trip south was going over the steep, temporary road through Cuesta Pass. There they saw in the distance the terrific forest fires raging near Santa Marguerita.

VISIT BOUQUET CANYON

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Trowbridge of Southern Glendale visited Bouquet Canyon Sunday. Mr. Trowbridge is connected with the Glendale Carpet and Mattress Works at 1411 S. San Fernando road. H. N. Bradbury of 429 Lincoln avenue, who is also connected with this firm, yesterday had not returned from his vacation at Big Bear lake.

New Water Main Develops Tract on North Pacific Ave.

The laying of the new eight-inch city water-main under Pacific avenue is certain to give great impetus to the development of that part of the city, according to A. B. Clement of 1321 North Pacific avenue. The installation of the new pipe is now under way, and adequate pressure is to be soon available.

Mr. Clement reports the sale of lots 14 and 23 in his Clement Orange tract to Mrs. Sibley of 718 South Brand boulevard, who is a long-time resident of Glendale. Lot 24 has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. James of 455 West Maple street, also old-timers here. Like many other property owners in that section, they will build immediately on their new property.

The old ranch barn which Mr. Clement has just wrecked indicates its antiquity by the fact that old-fashioned cut nails were used in its construction. An ideal home-place is being made of the estate, and but a few lots are left unsold now.

None is so arrogant as the beggar suddenly rich.
